Completely extra-pulmonary tuberculosis with abdominal lymph-node involvement presenting as an acute appendicitis: a case report and literature review. We report a case of a 23-year-old man presenting with an acute appendicitis and acutely developed retrosternal and epigastric pain, and fever. The appendectomy yielded a 4.5 x 3.5 x 3.0-cm sized mass with focal cavitation and caseation. Histopathology revealed miliary tuberculosis involving the appendix, retroperitoneal lymph nodes, psoas muscle, and kidneys. The patient responded rapidly to antituberculous medication. In patients with acute appendicitis, signs and symptoms of extra-pulmonary tuberculosis including abdominal lymph-node involvement should be looked for, and patients should receive a rheumatologic work-up. { "dataset_reader": { "type": "constraint_superset_reader", "negatives_only": true }, "dataset_transformer": { "type": "enrich_supers
